

College establishes connection to Internet

Imagine being linked to over four million computer systems in over 146 countries! By fall, the students of Michigan Christian College will have such resources available to them on campus through the Internet, the most popular vehicle of the information revolution.

College officials recently announced to the student body plans to proceed with the first phase of Internet installation. This summer, the current IBM compatible workstations in the computer lab will be networked with a Unix operating system in order to allow the college to establish a connection to the Internet. In addition, terminals will be placed in the Muirhead Library to facilitate Internet access of specialized library resources.

In future months, the college plans to proceed with a second phase of Internet installation, which will allow student access to the computer lab network and to the Internet from rooms in the college residence halls. Lines to accommodate phase two already have been installed in the residence halls.

The Internet is a worldwide web of interconnected computer networks. By connecting thousands of separately administered educational, governmental, and commercial networks, the Internet provides individuals and organizations with unlimited opportunities for resource sharing and communication.

On the Internet, students will be able to access several university library catalogs, and then obtain additional resources through an interlibrary loan program already administered by the Muirhead Library. In addition, students will find numerous on-line books and indexes of magazine articles. Many of the articles include full-text and can be printed directly from the Internet.

The Internet also features thousands of databases and an incredible amount of statistical information from governmental, business, scientific, and educational sources. Often such data is more current than printed versions since the material is updated more frequently.

Michigan Christian College's connection to the Internet will feature Gopher, a menu-driven navigator, and Netscape, a browsing tool for the World Wide Web that includes full-color graphics and sound, along with text. Between the simple menu system, color graphics, and unlimited amount of information, many will find that "surfing the Internet" can be fun as well as educational!

Athletes participate in stronger competition and national tourneys

Speaking to his team in a pregame session, Coach Ron Hammye of Wayne State University recently warned his players to not underestimate their competition, and stated, "Michigan Christian College is one of the best coached teams in the state of Michigan. You will not find student athletes that play any harder than the men who play for Michigan Christian." The MCC Warriors left that basketball game within four points of defeating Wayne State University, an NCAA Division II school with an enrollment of over 20,000 students!

As Coach Hammye later stated to an employee of MCC, "You play a difficult and competitive schedule, but you are equal to the task!" Such comments surfaced frequently during the past season as Michigan Christian College stepped up its competition level. The season included other NCAA colleges like Oakland University, Northern Michigan University, and Adrian College, and NAIA institutions like Siena Heights College and Madonna College. Even with the stiffer competition, the men's team ended their season with a 12-8 record.

In other areas of athletic competition, MCC hosted and participated in three national tournaments for the NSCAA during the 1994-95 academic year. Teams from several states traveled to the campus for finals in cross country, volleyball, and soccer. The women's cross country team from MCC took second place, and the soccer team took third at the tournaments.

Students receiving All American honors during the year included Ricardo Vidal of Valencia, Spain; Mary Ann Ureel of Knox, Michigan Christian College offers basketball, baseball, soccer, cross country, and track for men, and basketball, volleyball, cross country, and track for women. Students interested in playing sports at MCC may contact the Admissions Office at 1-800-521-6010 for program or scholarship information.

MCC ? Ask Me !!

"When I was in high school, I was involved in everything under the sun, but was unable to develop deep Christian friendships. At Michigan Christian College, the Lord has blessed me with opportunities to be involved in a lot of special activities, but also has allowed me to grow closer to Him and develop everlasting relationships with my peers and instructors. I've grown and matured so much within the last three years since arriving at Michigan Christian College. I will always be grateful for how the Lord has blessed me while I prepare to serve as a corrections probation officer."

He has directed Epsilon's act for Celebration in Song for the past two years, served as a representative at Camp Indogan, and assisted with Summer Jam and Fresh Start Welcome Weekend. He is a member of 4-Him, and Delta Psi Omega, a national honorary theatrical fraternity.

Making Headlines

HONDURAS MISSION TEAM

Assisting with a new mission effort, a group of students from Michigan Christian College spent their spring break working with the Garifuna people of San Antonio, Honduras. During the week, the group sponsored a beach cleaning project, conducted evening devotionals for the townspeople, and taught English in the public school. Team leader Amy Coe felt that the week not only opened new doors for resident missionaries, but also provided a "life-changing experience for members of the team, many of whom plan to return."

TRUSTEE SCHOLARS

Eight new students have been selected to receive Trustee Scholarships to Michigan Christian College for the 1995-96 academic year. Recipients include Jason Aston of Buffalo Grove, Illinois; Jim Frybarger of North Muskegon, Michigan; Lori Halverstadt of Canton, Ohio; Debby Hoyle of Fairhaven, Michigan; Heather May of Vineland, Ontario; Brad Reischl of Dunlap, Iowa; Jennifer Welsh of Fort Gratiot, Michigan; and Amanda Yen of West Memphis, Arkansas. The students were selected on the basis of academic record and leadership potential. The scholarships range from 50% to 100% of the full cost for tuition, room, and board.

Banner year experienced by music groups

Exciting opportunities became available to a greater number of students at Michigan Christian College during the 1994-95 academic year. The formation of a new choral ensemble, performances with a major symphony, and exceptional reception of the smaller ensembles highlighted a banner year for music groups.

Every year, many students identify their experience in chorus as one of the strongest influences on their social and spiritual lives. In order to provide more students with such positive experiences, the music department added a new choral ensemble last fall, the Concert Chorale. In addition to performing on several occasions in the local area during the year, the chorale recently completed a spring tour in Ohio, New York, and Ontario.

An eventful year for the college's original choral ensemble, the A Cappella Chorus, began with an invitation to perform with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra at Orchestra Hall. After a screening process, the chorus was selected to perform with the Wayne State University Chorale and the Madrigal Chorale of Southfield as vocal accompaniment for one of the symphony's popular pops concerts. Both the symphony and the guest conductor, the world renowned Eric Kunzel, already have requested that the Michigan Christian College A Cappella Chorus return next year for the symphony's only pops concert!

Rounding out an exciting year, Autumn and Spectrum, the college's smaller ensembles, performed their programs of contemporary gospel and popular music at locations throughout the Midwest. The groups had to turn down over twenty-five requests for programs.

Students interested in receiving specific information about participation in any of the vocal performance groups, or churches and youth leaders that would like to schedule groups should contact the MCC Admissions Office at 1-800-521-6010.

Campus life enhanced by improvements

Improvements in the Utley Student Center and the College Bookstore have attracted a lot of attention lately! The student center has a complete new look, and the bookstore, recently named Campus Corner, has added numerous new items especially for the students.

Last year, workers renovated the lower level of the student center for use as the Warrior Cafe. Since the cafe instantly developed as a popular gathering spot on campus, college personnel decided to make the same type of improvements in the rest of the facility.

Using the color scheme and design features of the Warrior Cafe, workers transformed the upper level of the student center for three types of activities. A carpeted area includes built-in seating and a satellite-dish television that can be seen throughout the entire room. A number of booths in another area provide students with a great place to relax and visit. Ping pong and pool are available in the third area.

Expanding the selection of items that have been particularly popular with the students, the Campus Corner has added several new designs in MCC sportswear, numerous cassette tape and compact disc titles, and a larger variety of witness-wear shirts. In addition, they have broadened their selection of gift items and snack foods.

When visiting the campus, be sure to drop by the Warrior Cafe, Utley Student Center, and Campus Corner!
